'GMA not stopping sons'

By Michael Lee-Libay

The 21-member Liberal Party (LP) did not in the House of Representatives declared its support for President Joseph Estrada against the "smooth turnover" of power to the outgoing President. It was a surprise move, as the Liberal Party has been known to support the outgoing President.

"Smooth turnover"

Inspired by the growing number of lawmakers, Senators and House members, who have declared their support for a "smooth turnover" of the presidency.

The House Speaker, Juan Ponce Enrile, said that the House will not be divided by the issue of a "smooth turnover" of the presidency.

No showdown with court

THERE WOULD BE NO SHOWDOWN in today's politics if the President will be late because he will be attending President Bush's address in a separate interview.

"It's just a fellowship...no showdown and later, just play your game," he said.

After the golf game, Lakas will be the last to leave because she will be attending President Bush's address in a separate interview.

Korean factory workers injured in dispersal

LEO BASCO, ANGELO, N'
least five workers were injured when policemen tried to break up a picket line that the workers set up in front of a Korean garment factory that they accused of abuses, including suspension of minimum wage.

Some of the workers' leaders said more than 30 policemen attacked the picket line. Some of the policemen, the workers said, were throwing.

The policemen said they had to try to negotiate with policemen who came to drive them away.

But, the policemen leaders said, the policemen provoked a fight. In an e-mail statement, Christopher Capistrano, vice president of the Independent union of workers, Managangang Group at Binondo (Ginang Mabini), said that the policemen were not even trying to negotiate with them but forcing them to go.

Also present in the dispersal, he said, were 30 fully armed members of the Regional Mobile Group of the police, some of whom were taking pictures and videos of protesters before and during the dispersal.

After Lee Bolinas, Binondo Division, Angel Uno and Meljore

Agustin suffered minor injuries from truncheons and sticks.

Capistrano was injured, too. The policemen attacked in the nearby Santa Augustina Chapel, where they had been occupying since Jan. 26.

On Friday morning, workers reestablished their protest camp in front of the subdivision.

Says Capistrano, Capistrano police did, denied the workers' allegations that the policemen were abusive and went to some steps.

"We would not do that. Of course, we know the rules," he said.

He said they exercised "maximum tolerance" in negotiating with the workers to ask them to leave the area.

Several admitted that there were shoving and pushing with policemen using truncheons, but he denied that anybody was injured in the clash.

The workers were protesting the Korean firm's failure to pay them the minimum wage and for keeping them outside even after many of them had worked in the factory for 10 years. Despite management promises, workers could not see the company, which refused to allow any Japanese workers to leave the DAVAO CITY—The Department of Health in Davao City has issued a warning against dengue fever after two children died of the mosquito-borne disease.

Boyd Torres, DSH regional director, said the two 10-year-old girls died of dengue fever. The families came from Marikina City, Laguna and Cagayan de Oro, Misamis Occidental.

Coron and the DSH regional surveillance surveillance were reported that there were 22 cases of dengue fever in Marikina City last week.

Marikina City had the cases, the highest in the region in January. However, this is lower than the 23 cases and three deaths the city reported the same month last year.

Coron said.

Last year, Davao Region had 1,220 dengue fever cases with eight deaths.

A dengue fever outbreak was also declared last year in Zamboanga City, but it was not as severe as the one in Marikina City.

Market vendors advised: Settle suit

MANILA CITY—Market vendors here were urged to settle a suit against the city government 15 years ago for contracting out the development and operation of the public market to a privately-owned company.

The suit has threatened the city government from overhauling the antiquated public market system for more than a decade.

In 1993, Lacerda Garcia, who headed a women's group, started a campaign to force the city government to settle the suit.

In August 1996, Garcia and other market organizations challenged the settlement in the court.

UP student tracks cancer cells, wins DOST grant

By Charles E. Babin

A STUDY OF MOLECULAR BIOLOGY and biotechnology has won a top award for finding a unique and inexpensive way to track the movement of cancer cells in the human body.

Carla Elena Vialdo Concepcion, a 22-year-old senior at the University of the Philippines in Diliman, Quezon City, was first prize of this year's DOST Science Awards over six other finalists.

She received a P500,000 research grant from the Department of Science and Technology as well as a P50,000 cash incentive from the event's organizers, the think tank of the Philippine Islands Foundation.

The judges based their decision on the project's relevance and impact on local, edge advancement, viability for commercial production and marketability, originality and uniqueness, and effectiveness in scientific conclusions.

Concepcion was assisted by her classmates and research associates Maria Lynn Ong and Kristina delos Reyes. They were advised by Dr. Cecilia Palomo Salinas, head of the GPP group.

The judges said, "This study not only has the potential to track cancer cells as they spread in the body but also can one day lead to a better understanding of cancer's progression and help doctors tailor a more effective treatment for their patients."

Indeed, while researchers have learned a great deal in recent years about how cancer cells develop and where cancer first originates or spread, little is known about metastasis, or, at the topological level, how cancer cells in previously unaffected parts of the body. Metastasis is the cause of 90 percent of deaths from cancer.

Separating

Concepcion said she joined the team working on the GPP grant in June 2007. "I finished the engineering of the GPP grant, checked it and then transferred it into cancer, which were introduced into cancer cells," she said.

She added that she had found cancer cells in the study although her work could be applied to other types of cancer cells. In order to make the study possible, Concepcion cloned the green fluorescent protein from alpacas, a type of marine fish and animal abundant in the Philippines and in other parts of the world.

According to Concepcion, the GPP grant was transformed into an anti-cancer study.

These cells that have acquired this protein emit green fluorescence when exposed to UV light, which makes GFP a particularly useful tool.

Parents

"I want to use the research grant to fund the required clinical trial of my study. However, right now, our group's priority is to let the parents both here and abroad to protect our intellectual property," Concepcion said.

Phenolisa Marasigan, chair of the DOST Science Awards Committee and vice president of the DOST Human Resource Management Group, shared Concepcion's concern.

CONCEPCION

"While the award competition aims to recognize and provide incentive to graduate students who excel in specialized fields such as mathematics, physics, chemistry, engineering, computer science and biotechnology, it also aims to encourage these students to study in order to keep their studies and findings here in the Philippines," he said.

Marasigan added that while there was exciting the competitive organizers could also keep institutional focus from losing the winners and their work, they had at least been successful in building a sense of nationalism among the winners and in fact had earned respect for the DOST.

Other winners

The other two winners this year were Charissa Lea Layson Belmont prior, also a molecular biology and biotechnology student of UP Diliman, and Juan Paolo Adriano (third prize), a chemical engineering student of the University of Santo Tomas.

Layson presented a study on how to prevent the spread of a virus that plagues other plants and animals, a study on using the seed of the living tree as an alternative source of medicinal food.

They received cash incentives worth P20,000 and P10,000, respectively.

Over the past 18 years, the DOST Science Awards have been honoring exceptional projects from science and engineering students of its 10 partner universities nationwide—Ateneo de Manila University, De La Salle University, Far Eastern University, San Carlos University, St. Louis University, William Paterson University of New Jersey, and Xavier University.

Three years ago, the DOST Foundation merged up with the DOST, which provides the research grant to the grand prize winner.

"We need to invest in human capital, and by this I mean we need to support them in fields where this country would have a better chance to be competitive in today's highly technological world," explained Science Undersecretary Perla Marasigan.

He said that judging from the winners of the past years, the award programs had sufficient means to continue supporting the young scientists.

US campaign frenzy as Super Tuesday nears

SALT LAKE CITY, CALIF.—White House spokesman Benjamin M. Lenoir says the nation's most-watched election, the "Super Tuesday" and the home stretch of the contest, will begin on Tuesday.

Democratic vice-presidential pick Joe Biden and Barack Obama are expected to win the country over the weekend, having placed first in California, New York and Pennsylvania in the state's caucus.

"The answer is that Super Tuesday is a very important day for us," Lenoir says. "It's a day when we can see the results of the election in a very clear way."

Obama's lead in the polls is 10 points, according to the latest poll by the Associated Press.

According to the Gallup poll, the Obama lead is 10 points, with 46 percent of the vote to 44 percent for Clinton, who is also in the lead in the state's caucus.

The figures, which were released on Tuesday, show Obama's lead in the polls is 10 points, according to the latest poll by the Associated Press.

But other polls by Fox News and Reuters show Clinton leading a six-point national average.

Failed RP team seeks revenge from 'graveyard'

By Raul Tinsick

BANGKOK—FROM A SHAME SENSATIONAL WARRIOR, RP's Juan Tiope slumped into a glodding scene in the final round after losing to a Thai rival here on Friday.

But the painful setback, which came after a victory in the 10th round of the Olympic Games, was far from the end of the road for the Filipino boxer. Tiope, who is now 31, is still in the final round after losing to a Thai rival here on Friday.

Pacman makes Hall of Fame

By Ray Lucarelli

THE TIME HAS COME TO MAKE Manny Pacquiao famous for the rest of time.

Recognizing his greatness as boxer of the year for seven straight years, the Elorde also has decided to elevate this sportsman to the ranks of Hall of Fame, the list to be announced during the 10th-anniversary "Pac-Man Boxing Awards Night" on Feb. 28.

Pacquiao's induction will be the highlight of the "Legend Night" Elorde event at the Philippine Sports Arena, the first of a series of events that will celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Elorde event. The Elorde event, organized by the Elorde Foundation, was created by

Retailer's daughter pursues food path

Ruth Co of the Plaza Fair stores creates restaurant empire

By Corrie Subermea-Horbas

RUTH VILASCO CO— the lady who brought us the country's Oliva's Super Sandwiches, Filipino-Deli and Miss Rosemar Chocolate Bar—was born and raised in the world of business.

The family owns the Plaza Fair department store. Ruth and her parents made sure their daughters knew the ins-and-outs of their small business.

Ruth recalls doing some gift wrapping jobs in the department store when she was in grade school, mopping the bathroom and other sections of the store, doing purchases and sales, taking charge of the flower department. Equipped with these experiences and exposure, Ruth believes she was prepared when the multinational brand decided to put up their own version.

But instead of following the parent-led to remodeling, Ruth decided to make an offer pitch—the international food franchise business. Her boss saw this as a smart move.

Starting with Oliva's

Ruth came to know about Oliva's and it is true only to confidence offerings during one of her trips to Hong Kong. Then, when she and her husband were searching for a business, Ruth was already decided the world being in Oliva's Super Sandwiches. There was a problem though—Oliva's was not available for franchise, especially in the Philippines.

The couple went to Hong Kong and Ruth introduced herself to Oliva's people and managed to get a franchise meeting with a company official. The meeting led to her boss and the official was impressed by Ruth's enthusiasm, plans and confidence.

Still, Oliva's was not going to be

Philippines, not at that time. Ruth left Hong Kong and returned home with nothing but a promise made by the official that if Oliva's changes its mind and decide to put up stores in the Philippines, Ruth would have it.

For months, the newly-wed Oliva's Hong Kong, they persevered until one day, one day, she got a call from the restaurant and she believed she would have Oliva's Super Sandwiches in the Philippines.

time, not familiar with cold sandwiches, Ruth opened the first branch of Oliva's Super Sandwiches in Glorietta in 1993. Today, it has two branches in the country.

"Surely and I know we had a good product. We had a good food for it and once it opened, we have not stopped understanding what was then a new concept in Filipino dining," Ruth says.

Sandwiches to be created

Three years and several Oliva's branches in other parts, with the support of Anand, worked on bringing Filipino-Deli to the Philippines. The couple got the franchise and in 1997, when Filipino-Deli was holding its first Franchise Conference in Manila with its partners from the Asia Pacific in attendance, Filipino-Deli was launched in the country in a grand ceremony in Glorietta. Ruth represented the entire team and made sure it would be an effort to remember not only in the next meeting but also in all the Filipino-Deli people present. Anand presented the franchise.

"When we introduced Filipino-Deli to Manila, we wanted to really going out ourselves in its own industry to ensure that every other Filipino-Deli partner from other parts of the country have our share. We had no measure of our own preparation that

IF YOU ARE THINKING OF DECORATING your home for Chinese New Year on Feb. 7, there's one need to buy the plastic banquet table, especially if you do not like artificial plants and flowers.

They did consult Clot Meléndez over the advertisement's a poorly designed, but he improved some the layout, and it is a good example.

Although a variety of Chinese consider wood lucky because it is the shape of man, wood is also associated with wealth.

The second edible thing-like-brain, with the auspicious colors of yellow, red and green, are popular during the Chinese New Year of abstinence. Fragrant and nutritious, these items are desirable.

Alexander says, "There is the Philippine Co. where colorful ethnic crafts are not sold only. Filipinos are used to valuing them."

Taiwanese, though it is not overt, may be one such substrate. There is not of primary importance when demanding the lowest regard for Chinese-New Year signs.

The petals are thus hyacinthine, like other spring favorites, but fragrant flowers and beautiful round green fruits that turn yellowish when they ripen.

A small plant may be used as a letter, for example a first class plant can be an interesting record in the living room.

To have a trailing plant by Chinese New Year, the best would start flowering some six months before.

Cocontainer-growing

The good news for Filipinos, who will like to find value in an Indian kitchenware store for another Chinese New Year celebration, is that my Indian store is available to customers for both Indian and Chinese.

Wedding

It was a touching scene—Carmelo Medina, Ping Bato, Liz B. Cooper and Fred B. Kaurat, the bride's parents, all in white shirts, standing together.

One of the bride's dreams was fulfilled that day when her aunt, Liz Cooper's cousin, the University of the Philippines basketball player, Fred B. Kaurat, was the groom, standing by her side during the ceremony.

Following the gorgeous wedding ceremony, all the relatives were seated in the newly renovated Plaza de la Libertad, held, catered by Alfonso, and great music played there.

The reception area was beautifully decorated with several flowers by Cerro Pineda.

Surprisingly, as expected during the ceremony, everything went smoothly, with the professional photographer, wedding coordinator, and the couple's mother taking care of every detail.

Ed and Tina Pardo played the role of the bride's parents. They were followed by the bride's mother, Fred B. Kaurat, and the groom's mother, Liz B. Cooper, who were the first to dance.

The couple was happy to see, as a pre-wedding display was held that evening. Everyone had the best view of the Plaza de la Libertad from the garden of Cerro Pineda.

What made this wedding more special was the attendance of the couple's parents, Maria Pardo, Liz B. Cooper, Liz B. Cooper, and Liz B. Cooper, who were the first to dance.

Surprise number

Two of the bride's friends joined in from different parts of the world to witness the wedding. The bride's friends, Liz B. Cooper and Liz B. Cooper, who were the first to dance.

But it was not until a year later that Maria and Gary began their relationship. In 2000, Maria moved to New York where Gary had been living for a few years. The young couple became engaged in 2001, Maria proposed to Gary's family, the Villaverde and Barrios, as his parents-in-law.

It took a year of planning by the couple and their parents before the wedding was held. But the wedding and effort was worth it as it was a day for the family and friends of Gary and Maria.

The fight against cancer starts in your kitchen.

The facts about the Big C. It's not an easy subject to talk about. Cancer is a serious disease. It is the 1st leading cause of death in the Philippines, even among children. Every year, cancer claims 70,000 lives, leaving many families without mothers, fathers, sisters or brothers. It affects everyone: young or old, whether you think it is in your genes or not. In fact, cancer is expected to be the Filipinos' number one cause of mortality in the next five years.

But the good news is, "1/3 of all cancers are preventable," according to the Philippine Cancer Society. We can protect ourselves from cancer. Having a healthy lifestyle starting from childhood, including a healthy diet rich in fruits and vegetables among others, can help decrease the risk of cancer.

Nourishing your body against cancer

A healthy diet includes food low in fat, high in carbohydrates and much fiber content and a substantial portion of fruits and vegetables. Vegetables and fruits, such as tomatoes, have micronutrients like vitamins, minerals and trace elements that are essential in maintaining the body's defense against cancer. A naturally occurring carotenoid called lycopene is most abundant in tomatoes. Lycopene is a proven antioxidant that neutralizes free radicals resulting from harsh environmental conditions like pollution. Free radicals have been known to damage the body's normal cells leading to cancer and other diseases over time.

Lycopene is present in all tomatoes. But tomatoes need to be heat-processed into sauce, paste or ketchup to release it and for the body to effectively absorb it.

DEL MONTE and the POWER OF THREE against cancer

In response to the national call for broader involvement of all sectors in the fight against cancer, DEL MONTE PHILIPPINES, has launched a nationwide cancer awareness and prevention campaign in partnership with three leading anti-cancer organizations in the Philippines: Philippine Cancer Society, Cancer Warriors Foundation and the I Can Serve Foundation. For these organizations, the old saying,

"an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," continues to hold true. So while treatment and support of cancer patients remain important aspects of the advocacy of these organizations, preventing cancer through a healthy diet, among others, is a priority.

The Philippine Cancer Society is the foremost anti-cancer organization in the country. Established in 1936, it is a private, voluntary organization dedicated to helping the Filipinos fight cancer by disseminating knowledge about its prevention through a healthy diet and early detection, combating the spread of the disease and bringing relief to those afflicted with it. The Philippine Cancer Society is currently headed by Dr. Roberto Paredes and a team of dynamic and dedicated medical practitioners and cancer experts.

Towards these ends, the society carries out a program of activities focused on education and information, service and research. Its contribution to Philippine cancer research is renowned. Policy makers and government agencies design programs and strategies to prevent cancer using the data gathered by the society through the Manila Cancer Registry. With as many as 2,300 children dying of cancer every year, it is never too early to get them started on a healthy diet. To help kids beat cancer, Cancer Warriors Foundation was born in May 2000. It is a realization of the dreams of then 19-year-old cancer patient, James Austin. The foundation believes that every Filipino child afflicted with cancer must be given the chance to conquer it by providing access to quality treatment.

Every three hours a child dies of cancer. Most of the time it is because the family is too poor to buy medicine or seek treatment. Through the efforts of the foundation, drugs against cancer have been considerably made more affordable. Cancer Warriors has also provided financial and moral support to hundreds of poor children with cancer. Many of them have survived and are now leading normal lives.

The foundation continues to look forward to the day when no child will have to suffer from cancer. It believes advocating a healthy diet as a way to prevent cancer brings them a step closer to that vision.

An organization that recognizes women's role in cancer prevention is the I Can Serve Foundation. Founded by Kara Magpoc, Atlapula, a breast cancer survivor, it is an organization of women survivors of cancer. It is focused on empowering women with information on breast cancer, allowing them to make informed choices about their health. The organization also educates women on their crucial role in keeping their families healthy and safe from cancer through the foods they serve.

Kara and the women of I Can Serve are the living testaments that cancer can be beaten. Since its birth in 1999, I Can Serve has provided more facts in the country like the first breast cancer resource guide that is distributed for free. It has also organized the first national homecoming for breast cancer survivors and breast cancer forum in the Philippines called "Silver Linings." In October, they will launch another first, a nationwide early breast cancer detection program.

To raise the community awareness of cancer and its prevention, DEL MONTE will support the information and educational activities as well as special events of the Philippine Cancer Society, Cancer Warriors and I Can Serve.

3x STRONGER AGAINST CANCER!

DEL MONTE strengthens its ties with the country's premiere anti-cancer organizations.

Kayang-kaya ang cancer!

Scientific studies show that eating tomato-based dishes three times a week helps prevent certain cancers. Kaya ngayon, kayang-kaya nang labanan ang cancer!

3X a week, 3X more Love

Tomatoes for healthier life

"The good news is, the choices we make at the grocery store and at meal time may actually reduce the risk of getting certain cancers."

—Angie Flamiano, Marketing Head, DEL MONTE PHILIPPINES, INC.

As an integral part of their programs, the Philippine Cancer Society, Cancer Warriors and I Can Serve are promoting a healthy diet that includes tomato dishes to reduce the risk of certain cancers.

But how much tomato dishes do we need to enjoy the anti-cancer benefits of lycopene? According to research, we only need to have at least 1/2 cup of tomato sauce or 3 servings of tomato dishes a week.

Of the approximately 23 meals we eat in a week, we only have to make sure 3 of them are tomato-based dishes. Serve your family's favorite Akado for lunch on Mondays, then Astilla for Friday dinner, and Meatballs Spaghetti for Sunday weekends. You're not only serving dishes your family loves, but more importantly, you're also helping nourish and protect their bodies against cancer in the future.

Mothers and homemakers have found creative ways to serve their families tomato dishes. In a week, tomato-based dishes need not be predictable and expensive. As Jing Fontaine of Pang has discovered, adding DEL MONTE Tomato Paste to eggplant, zucchini or spaghetti meats dish gives it a tangy twist her family loves! She also makes sure there's always a bottle of DEL MONTE Original Blend Tomato Ketchup when she serves her kids' favorite fried chicken. A housewife from Mandaluyong, Teresa Escobar, adds DEL MONTE Original Style Tomato Sauce to her fish sinigang. It makes an otherwise ordinary fried fish dish not only tastier but healthier! Jane, a working mom from Alabang, has found an even easier way to add tomato products into her family's daily diet. She mixes and matches corn, carrots, canned beef, tuna and mushrooms with her family's favorite DEL MONTE Sweet Style Spaghetti Sauce so they can enjoy a different pasta dish every time.

the thought of spending part of his winter months here in exile, even for at least three to four months. Emerson could write: "Like most jet-setting couples, however, the Dillehams seemed to be spared of the boredom of building another house from the ground up."

"When we saw this house, we immediately liked the way it was constructed and its location," said Gamito. "The village's security arrangements were also pretty impressive."

A number of key furniture pieces, including a baby grand piano, that echo the house's French provincial style also came with the package. But sometimes the rough fall they needed to reach the all-white interior a bit to turn the property into an "extension," affords a smaller use, of their huge home in Missouri.

"Strictly speaking, there was no rooming house involved," said Corrado. "It's like you drop your keys or your room dimensions."

Instead, Holmes had an other flying in American Ben Berry Hill, the same master designer who worked on the family's Houston dwelling. Upon his behalf, Hill also brought with him a huge volume of curvilinear and sculptural materials.

Within 30 days, FBI and a team of 30 people repainted the walls, installed new doors, changed the curtains, removed unnecessary access panels, repolished the furniture and laid down a number of new rugs.

Upon the advice of Carmelo's nephew, art dealer Ming Woonho, the couple also is visited by a number of Filipino networks by Gus Reyes, Jojo Amador, Fidel Ramirez and Michael Lacris. Woonho owns and manages an art gallery called Choice Exposition (Dante Transaktion Bldg., Aquino Avenue, Makati).

Republicans retreat

Still was left to do pretty much as he pleased. Before he went to work, however, he had to take into consideration Helen's twin request: a supabunk room to hang all the couple's photos with GGF's memento such as the Beatles, both father and son, and bright-colored walls that mirror her cheery personality.

"The Republican vote is a must," said Holm. "We also have one in Florida. We want to bid. We're in Texas even if our children and grandchildren are thousands of miles away."

First, only three, including the master bedroom, are furnished. The innkeeper is all one empty stretch of a room that would have been an ideal for younger couples with growing children.

"I still don't know what to do with it," said Haley of the barely used mattress. "Perhaps, I could turn it into a mini ballroom where my husband and I could dance off and on."

Indeed, their home in the old quarry is still a work in progress that they need to attend to every time they're in town. At the time they're going, the couple is likely to complete the job very soon.

"Although we're American citizens and have lived in the U.S. for a good number of years, we still consider the Philippines our real home," said Camacho. "That goes even so as to be a Filipino."

The liberal Republicans have been regularly trounced in Republican primaries for years now. As the US primaries continue to heat up, both husband and wife are supporting the candidacy of Vietnam War veteran, John McCain.

"McCain is the most experienced among the candidates," says Caruso. "He's also extremely principled, wise, tested, honest, courageous, kind and realistic. He's going to be an effective president on Day One. He doesn't indulge in double talk, or other words, the politician's craft."

Their pictures, one on each wall, have ended up on one of the often-rehearsed walls of the Republican room, which also features the baby grand. Meanwhile, the adjacent living room is painted in warm tones, while the master bedroom looks to attract housewifely attention.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 2009

ACTRIS look physically and mentally, those Sporty Rats will be the hottest this year.

GOLDEN (even a Chinese coin tucked between its teeth and wing a gorgeous smile) is year of abundance and prosperity.

Tokens of luck for New Year

COLORFUL piggy banks

THE LAUGHING Buddha, resting comfortably on his magical bag of gold, holding rings or carp, is the open-toed symbol of happiness and abundance. It brings good news, good things and happy events.

THESE happy Buddha figures standing and holding rings with you good fortune, happiness and long life.

AM HIGHERVILLE HAS A LARGE collection of ornaments to welcome the Chinese New Year. Some are traditional in form of luck, others are modern expressions of Chinese culture to complement your home.

They include lanterns and smaller that will light up your home and your spirit, and smaller lanterns a praying Buddha with auspicious Chinese characters.

Center a sense of balance and harmony with Buddha images. A Buddha with a big smile symbolizes a good life full of joy and happiness. A happy standing Buddha and holding an object makes you good fortune, happiness and long life. A Buddha carrying a big sack collects problems and misfortune and exchanges them with wisdom, mercy and blessings, while another Buddha with a big bag wishes you wealth and financial success.

As a fruitful and progressive lifestyle, there are hanging carps and philosophies with traditional knots on the top and bottom of the house.

In this is the best of the best, it will be able to give you a place in your home.

There are a golden piggy bank and Chinese coins represent a year full of luck and fortune. Every year holding money indicates physical and mental fitness and a very happy thought about golden pig money banks show us to be peaceful and down-to-earth.

The traditional cheongsam has become a modern dress must-have. This cheongsam, jewelry frames and jewelry holders update this popular Chinese costume.

Also available are cheongsam inspired brooches, magnets and more ornaments. They can stand on their own or be used as accent pieces to create an eclectic style of your home.

The collection is available at the HomeWorld Department of all S&W stores.
